THE THEATER

ACADEMY OF MUSIC--Wednesday night--Bob Fitzsimmons. Friday night--Matthews and Bulger, in "The Night of the Fourth."
BIJOU--All the week--Vaudeville.

The week just ended was a busy one in Richmond theatrical circles. The Academy was not dark a single night during the week and the Bijou, with an excellent bill, had capacity audiences each night and many of the matinee performances will not be quite so lively from a dramatic point of view as last. The Bijou promises an unusually strong offering, but the Academy has but two bookings, one of which is Bob Fitzsimmons, in the Honest Blacksmith, and the other is Matthews and Bulger, in "The Night of the Fourth."

There is an old saw which has been quoted often and to this might be added that critics are not always of the same mind. This observation is apropos of the wide divergence of the criticisms in the morning papers of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," one of the Academy's best offerings last week. By one critic the production was pronounced to be "disappointing," while the other, and modestly, gave it the highest praise. The production was a strong one and the result was a finished production.

This observation and quotation is made in no capricious spirit. Both critics were entitled to their opinion and were right. "Oftentimes," says the Academy, "the production was a strong one and the result was a finished production."

Bob Fitzsimmons is an interesting character on the stage. He is new to the business, but being the champion pugilist of the world is naturally expected to show himself on the stage. Mr. Louis James tells a funny story of Bob. When the champion first entered the dramatic field, he went to Mr. James in much tribulation. "I know how to act," he said, "but I am knocked out when I look at my hands. I don't know what to do with them. Can't you give me a tip as to how to use 'em?"

Mr. James looked him over carefully for a moment, then in a dreamy sort of fashion said, "Let me see; you are the champion pugilist of the world."

"The same," replied Bob with a smile. "Well," continued Mr. James, "I would advise you to keep your fists balled up and in front of your face, assuming an attitude of the defensive. That will suit you and will undoubtedly please your audience."

At the Academy.

Bob Fitzsimmons, champion pugilist of the world, will make his initial bow to a will appear as Lily Bud. Whalley will be the Elsie Boliver, just from school, and Adlyn Estee will play "Laura Jean Frost," the ice-man's sister. Josie DeWitt will have an excellent opportunity as "Kittie," a "ready maid," and Tony Hart will reveal as "Joseph Kidder," a boy detective.

At the Bijou.

Manager Wells will present a strong bill of vaudeville features at the popular Bijou this week. The bill is made up of strong acts, all of which are of different kinds, and new to the patrons of the house.

One of the bright numbers to be presented will be that of Miss Eleanor Falk and her chorus of eight pretty girls, who are called the Jersey Lilies. The act is indeed, one of the features of vaudeville. Miss Falk is an attractive little woman, and her work as a comedienne elevated her to the top of the class. Recently she conceived the idea of having a chorus, and her success was so great that she was held for months in New York, and is away just long enough to appear in Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

Hall and Staley, the comedy duo, will present their comedy sketch, that affords the comedians a chance to introduce specialty work. The sketch itself is indeed funny, and the specialty work is quite entertaining. Kelly and Violette, whose specialty is the singing of popular songs, will also appear. The duo has earned for them the title "Fishes-Plates of Vaudeville," are billed to present a neat dancing and singing act, and the costumes used are said to be beautiful.

E. P. Revnard, the marvelous ventriloquist, whose work has startled America, is to appear here, and then, after a short rest, will sail for Europe to fill engagements. He is a wonderful entertainer, and his mechanical figures are perfect.

The comedy trio known as the Horse-shoe Trio will present an act that promises to earn laughter and applause. The pictures to be exhibited by the viagraph are all new, and will eclipse the best ever seen here. The regular performance will be given.

THE STAR COURSE.

The opening concert of this year's Star Course will be given in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium to-morrow evening, beginning at 8 1/2 o'clock. The committee requests that all ticket holders be in their seats promptly at the hour named, as ushering will not be allowed, except between numbers. This company made their first appearance in Boston during their first tour, in October, obtaining two nights in the Brooklyn Young Men's Christian Association, which is one of the leading associations of America. On both occasions the crowd was so large that people were turned away. The personnel of the company is exceptionally unique and strong. It includes both vocal and instrumental work, also Alpine, hunting, and Jodel songs. Among the instruments used will be the following: Zither, glass harmonica, wood-harp, Hungarian cymbalon, glass harmonica, and the new invention, a aluminum gong bells. Their tour, thus far, has been a magnificent one, and their concert in Richmond will be their first appearance in Virginia.

While the sale of season tickets exceeds last year, there are still about twenty seats that can be obtained for the season. Single tickets for the concert can be obtained at the building Monday.

The members of the Richmond Lyceum will to-morrow night, enjoy perhaps the most unique entertainment ever presented in the superb courses that have been given here for several years. Ramon Reyes Lala, a native Filipino, will deliver a lecture on the Philippines, illustrated with stereoscopic views. Mr. Lala comes from one of the wealthiest and most cultured families in the Philippines. He was graduated from one of the English universities, and afterward from Yale, and was for many years prominent in business and social life in Manila, until forced to leave because of Spanish persecution. A few years ago he transferred his allegiance to the United States, being the first Filipino admitted to American citizenship. Mr. Lala presents in his lecture a fascinating illustrated description of the Philippine Islands, with an accurate and interesting account of the Spanish discovery and domination, also touching upon the recent American conquest and occupation. He describes the life, character, religion and customs of the natives. Those who have read Mr. Lala's articles in the leading magazines do not need to be told that his style is spirited and interesting. His book on the Philippines, just published, is accepted as the most authentic work on the subject, and is endorsed by Admiral Dewey and many others, who are acquainted with the conditions in the new American possessions. Mr. James W. Gordon will introduce the lecturer.

Theatrical Amusements.

Bond is entertaining New York. Edith Crane is in Australia.

"A Modern St. Anthony" is to be acted by Kathryn Kidder and Louis James.

"Garret O'Mah" is the title of Chauncey O'Leary's new piece.

The picture to be exhibited by the viagraph are all new, and will eclipse the best ever seen here. The regular performance will be given.

Sydney is to have three pantomimes at Christmas--one at the Tivoli, with Billie Barlow as principal boy; another at the Lyceum, with Nellie Stewart in the same part, and a third, with John P. Sheridan, at the Royal.

Lacy is to revive "The Still Alarm." Sol Smith Russell will not act next Sunday, when he will produce a play by Martha Morley.

"The Moon Maiden" and "The Carlo Dealer" are new pieces by Richard Carle. Spanish plays are to be adapted for use in America.

Women have risen to great heights as authors, actresses, painters, sculptors, and musicians. Their conspicuous failures are in the drama, poetry, sculpture, and architecture. Gertrude Atherton in New York Journal.

Kelcey and Shannon are to produce Lucette Ryley's "My Lady Daint." "The Corps" is a new Tolstoid drama.

May Irwin is an actress of thrift as well as good humor. She declines to sing other ballads than those on which a royalty is paid to her by the publishers. New York Sun.

Aude Adams and Sarah Bernhardt are to be hot on each other's trail this winter. The French actress will shortly be playing "L'Aiglon" at the Garden, with Miss Adams hard by. The American player will appear in Washington January 7th, and Bernhardt reaches that city the next week. Shortly afterward they will be falling over each other's heels, theatrically speaking, in Chicago.

Ellen Terry is very ill. Playwright Buchanan is paralyzed.

"Herod," put on by Beethoven Tree, is the latest production ever seen on any stage in the world during this century. It is a succession of stupendous pictures, glowing with life and color. The critics are dumb before such delight to the eye. I have seen everything worth looking at in the last fifty years--the "Sardanapalus" of Charles Kean, the "Camilla" or the "Cup" of Irving, at the Lyceum, the "The Two Gentlemen of Verona" of the old time, but "Herod" beats them all. I could see "Herod" again and again, for its color beauty, light texture and barbaric splendor takes us away to another world.

"Herod" compared with the most marvelous things I have seen in nature, Niagara, the Palace of Delhi, Tap Mahal and the Marble Mausoleum at Agra. "Clement Scott, in New York Telegraph.

Blaukey is to run a circus. Frank Daniels has been idle and idle several weeks. His understudy has been playing the title role in "The American."

Consider my treatment unjust," said Minnie Tracey, no longer a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company. "For two principal reasons--my size is what it was when Mr. Grau and Mr. Savage heard me sing in Paris and drew up our contract, and I hold I am too large for the enacting of dramatic soprano heroines. I do not believe art, which fact is proved by the circumstance that I have sung successfully for many years in the European capitals, where the temperaments of the artists are most sensitive. I am no larger than other dramatic singers, and no other was ever done this way. Nordica is as large as I. So is Melba. Schumann-Heink and Susan Strong, Felia Litvinne, the De Reszkes' sister-in-law, is much larger, yet in her of these instances has the public objected, and I do not believe any serious objection was raised in my case. Humiliation alone is not what this costs me. The financial loss is great."

Longing.

The green road, the clean road; it is so broad and high; It stretches from the happy sea to touch the happy sky.

Oh, I laughed once to forsake it, but I'm longing now to take it-- The green road, the clean road, that is so broad and high.

The gray street, the gay street; how solemnly it shines! The sun imprints his pleasures, but there's pain between the lines.

Oh, I smiled at first to see it, but I'm eager now to flee it-- The gray street, the gay street; how solemnly it shines!

The pure love, the sure love comes over me like rain; The tinsel of my heartless love is turning poor and plain.

It's my life I have been giving just to make a decent living. It's my all I have been losing just to get a little gain.

The nest song, the best song is crying from the little room I dwell in with a memory for my guest.

The green road, the clean road; it is so broad and high. It stretches from the happy sea to touch the happy sky.

Oh, to rise and part with sadness! Oh, to move and meet with gladness. On the green road, the clean road, that is so broad and high!

—J. J. Bell, in Chambers' Journal.
